

Aysgarth Falls and Freeholders' Wood

Grid reference: SE 012888

Aysgarth Falls is a series of cascading falls separated into three forces, Higher, Middle and Lower. Higher Falls is the most vigorous of the group whereas Middle Falls had the largest single drop of around 2m. Lower Falls is in the most serene setting.

The National Park Centre café nearby is wheelchair accessible and can cater for specific dietary requirements.

Trail to Freeholders' Wood

This level footpath runs through Freeholders' Wood with great views of the Middle Falls. All gates are accessible and there are seating areas along the route.

A further route can be followed along a mud track through the woodland.

Toilets

There are public toilets, including RADAR facility toilets, at the National Park Centre.

Parking

There are designated car parking spaces near to the toilets, National Park Centre and entrance to the café.
